

ABSTRACT

A formed bottle is delivered by a takeout mechanism
5 to a deadplate where it is suspended for cooling. A temperature sensor is mounted to monitor the suspended bottle. When the sensed temperature shows an unacceptable variation, the takeout mechanism and deadplate are displaced relative to one another so that the suspended 10 bottles are located above a cullet chute for disposal.